SCRIBNERS FOR JULY.

The West Point Military Academy and its surroundings are profusely and beautifully illustrated in SCRIBNER'S for July, the historical and descriptive text being supplied by Benson J. Lossing. This article appears just at the time that public attention is attracted to the Academy. Another timely paper is that on "Woman as a Smuggler and Woman as a Detective," in which one of the most curious and suggestive branches of the Custom House system is fully exposed. Mr. Warner's "Back-Log Studies," (by the way, one of the best series of magazine articles ever published in America), are, if anything, more delightful than their predecessors. "Draxy Miller's Downy," a very fresh and strong piece of characterization, by that mysterious author Saxo Holm, is concluded in this number; and a generous installment is given Mrs. Oliphant's "At his Gates." Mr. Wilkinson's searching but courteous criticism of "Mr. Lowell's Prose," is concluded. Then we have a strong naturalistic story by James T. McKay, entitled "Harker and Blind," an interesting little illustrated article on spiders ("Will you walk into my parlor?") an illustrated paper, "As Others See Us," by Prof. Wilder, of "Cornell," a brief essay on "The Law of the Heart and the Law of the Street," by Mr. Hodgkins, and poems by Mrs. Whitney, and Miss Osgood. The Editorial Departments are, as usual, quite full. Dr. Holland, in "Topics of the Time," talks about "The Christian Sabbath in Great Cities," "The Literary Bureaus Again," "Our President," and "Indirect Damages." The Old Cabinet has something concerning "Old Probabilities," "My Famous Friend," "Poor Philo," and "Mrs. Whitney's Pansies." "Nature and Science," "Home and Society," "Culture and Progress," and "Etchings," are full of practical information and entertainment.

State of Michigan, County of Van Buren, ss. At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Van Buren, held at the Probate Office, in the village of Paw Paw, on Monday the twenty-seventh day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two: Present, Geo. The Farmers Club Pic-Nic

Held at the grove of E. Smith, was a success in every particular. The day was everything that could be asked, and by ten o'clock carriages began to arrive and to unload. From every vehicle men were seen carrying pails, and baskets, and trunks filled with everything eatable, and some things that were intended only to feast the eye.

Mr. Smith had every arrangement completed, and was on hand to welcome the guests as they arrived. Long lines of tables were arranged under the shade of the oaks, with a waiting table in the centre, from which the contents of the various baskets could be easily distributed to the eating tables, faster than the ladies could distribute it. The provisions arrived in bewildering variety and and profusion. Strawberries by the bushel were picked over by nimble fingers. The reputation our farmer's wives have always sustained, for setting a fine table, was not lost on this occasion. It would be impossible to particularize and describe the various dishes. I venture to say that no cook book ever contained half the recipes for cakes and pastry as were shown on these tables. Bouquets and mottoes were numerous. Mrs. J. J. Woodman brought a pyramid of flowers surmounted by this motto "Farmer's Club of Antwerp, welcome all." The band arrived before dinner and enlivened the occasion with excellent music.

After all had satisfied the wants of the inner man, Mr. J. J. Woodman announced that speeches would be made by several gentlemen present, and after a short address of welcome, called out E. Smith, the man to whom we were indebted for the many excellent arrangements, and the pleasant ground we occupied. Mr. Smith announced himself as no public speaker, but was highly pleased to see so many of his friends, and to see them enjoying themselves so well. He was heartily applauded at the close of his speech, and Judge Monroe was called. He had not heard of the picnic until he arrived in Paw Paw, and he told his friends he could not go, for he had not brought his picnic clothes along, his friends insisted, and said he, "I went and bought this hat and coat, and here I am." He spoke of the contrast between the country now and thirty years ago, and the improvement that had taken place since that time. E. Durkee spoke of the importance of educating children to habits of industry. Of our common schools as a matter of more importance, and deserving more care than is given them. He was practical in his remarks, and was listened to with interest.

Edwin Barnum was called for and spoke of the wilderness he came through thirty years ago, between Kalamazoo and Paw Paw. There was but one house on the whole route. He spoke of the primitive dinner he ate there years ago, and contrasted it with the appearance of the table to day. It was an indication of the advancement since that time. Mr. Hawkins was loudly called for. He moved on a wild piece of land a little east of Mattawan, and spoke of the hardships he endured, when nothing could be got to eat. A coon was a god-send, and furnished meat for several days. He spoke of going five or six miles to get hands to raise his log house, and of it taking three days to raise it. How he went out at two o'clock in the morning to kill a coon to make a dinner for the raising. Two or three were present who helped eat that coon dinner.

Joseph Gilman said he knew more in those days of the doings and plans of his neighbors five miles away, than of his neighbors now who joined raffish, spoke of their enjoyment, and the interest each took in the welfare of his neighbor. He alluded with pride to the table, as an evidence of prosperity since those days.

Rev. G. P. Blanchard was called out, and paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of the hardy pioneers, made a glowing picture of the spreading harvest as the fruits of their toil. He alluded to the liberality of Mr. Smith, in furnishing so much toward such an excellent entertainment.

The exercises at the stand closed by a vote of thanks to Mr. Smith for the use of his buildings and grounds.

The Farmer's Club of Antwerp still sustains its reputation for getting up fine pic-nics, but these are counted as among its accomplishments. The more solid arguments in its favor are its discussions, and the dissemination of practical knowledge in every branch of farming. A. C. G.
